

Frequently Asked Questions

What is the criteria to qualify for a parking permit?

An individual must be unable to walk unassisted for more than 50 metres (164 feet) without great difficulty or danger to their health and safety in order to qualify for a parking permit.

In Saskatchewan, there are five healthcare professionals who can authorize the application form - physicians, occupational therapists, physical therapists, nurse practitioners, and chiropractors.

How do I apply for a parking permit?

One of the five authorized healthcare professionals must confirm the medical information on the initial application for all parking permits. Once the form is complete, it can be mailed into the address on the application form or brought in to any Special Needs Equipment depot, along with the $10 permit fee.

How do I renew my parking permit?

Individuals who have a short term or long term permit are required to reapply by having the application form completed by their healthcare professional.

Individuals who have a permanent permit are not required to resubmit the medical information to renew their permit. They can self-declare by filling out Section 1 of the application form. They will not need to have the application form completed by a healthcare professional. Reminder notifications are sent to all existing permanent parking permit holders when it is time to renew their permit.

Is there a cost for the parking permit?

Yes. There is a $10 fee every time a permit is issued, which was introduced in 2011. The fee is used to cover costs associated with the program, including expenses such as the cost of permits, stickers, labour, etc. The applicant is responsible for any fees the healthcare professional may charge for the completion of the form.

Can I email or fax my application form?

We cannot accept an emailed or faxed application form for a parking permit, as the original signature of both applicant and doctor are required to process the application.

I don't have a driver's licence. Can I still apply for a parking permit?

Yes, you are eligible for a parking permit if you meet the medical criteria. Applications are completed in the name of the person with the disability, regardless of age or if they drive or own a vehicle. The permit is designed to be transferable so it can be used in any vehicle the person with the disability rides in.

Where can I obtain an application form for a parking permit?

Application forms are available at all SaskAbilities branches, many SGI motor licence issuers, and on our website at www.saskabilities.ca.

If I am visually impaired, am I eligible for a permit?

If you are legally blind, you are eligible for a parking permit.

What do I do with my parking permit when it is expired or no longer needed?

Permits that are expired or no longer needed should be returned to the nearest SaskAbilities branch or call (306) 385-7213.

Are parking permits issued in Saskatchewan recognized in other provinces/territories?

Other provinces/territories will recognize these parking permits, but it is the responsibility of the permit holder to comply with local municipal laws if using their permit in other jurisdictions. The permit style in Saskatchewan, which hangs from the rear view mirror, is the North American standard design.

Can I get more than one permit?

No. The permit is designed to be easily moved from one vehicle to another, and it is the responsibility of the applicant to have their permit with them in the vehicle if they plan to use designated parking spaces.

If I suspect a permit is being misused, what should I do?

Misuse of a parking permit can be reported to the Accessible Parking Program office, either by email, telephone, or in person. We require the permit number, a description of the person using the permit, and where and when the permit was being misused. All information shared with the Accessible Parking Program is kept confidential.

What is SGI's involvement with the Accessible Parking Program?

SGI became involved with the parking program with the introduction of a special licence plate and/or placard in the past. The Handicapped Licence Plate Program was discontinued in 1997 and replaced with placards displayed on the dash of the vehicle. SGI facilitated the change to a renewable permit, introduced in 2008 after consultation with user groups. However, SaskAbilities administers the program.
